

Ground-breaking science,
selected by experts,
published without delay,
open for greater influence.

eLife is a researcher-driven initiative for the very best in science and science communication whose first aim is to publish an open-access journal for the life and biomedical sciences. We promote rapid, fair, and constructive review. We will use digital media and open access to increase the influence of published works. We commit to serving authors and advancing careers in science.

At eLife, publishing is just the beginning.
